The Air Training Plan

THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH Air Training Plan has entered its third year of operation. In December 1939 representatives of Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Canada met in Ottawa and final details of the Plan were arranged. In April of that same year, the first class commenced initial training at Toronto. Preliminary plans for such a training scheme had been discussed before the outbreak of the war, and much thought had been given to the matter by all the nations involved. However, we are told that even the most optimistic hopes of those who made the early arrangements have been surpassed by the success with which the Plan has progressed. Its magnitude is understood by most Canadians, for training is carried on in every province of the Dominion. The Prairies, with their excellent facilities for landing and fine atmospheric conditions have proved ideal for training purposes and in a great many Western communities there is now nothing unfamiliar in the constant hum of 'planes in the sky, and in the presence of airmen from all parts of Canada and from abroad.

Rapid Growth Of R.C.A.F.

While the Air Training Plan is a joint enterprise, and the greatest thing of its kind yet undertaken in this war, it is essentially Canadian, and is administered by the R.C.A.F. More than eighty per cent of the men trained are Canadians, and Canada bears two-thirds of the cost of the maintenance of the Plan. In 1939 the R.C.A.F. had only 233 officers and 3,400 men. In the past three years these numbers have increased rapidly and there are now 125,000 officers and men in the Force. Of these, 83,000 are engaged in instructional, administrative and maintenance work. There are 150 establishments connected with the Plan, of which 93 are training schools. Over two thousand buildings are in use for it, and there are stations in every province. The development of the scheme has made Canada a first class air power in the world today and has earned for her the title of "an airdrome of Democracy". The scheme represents an effort of great magnitude, and gratitude and credit are due to those who have planned and developed it, for it has undoubtedly been an important factor in the successful defense of the Allied nations. Its great importance in the offensive now commencing is clear, and the success with which the Plan is functioning is one of the things on which we may base confidence and hope for victory.

Air Strength Is Important Britain, Australia and New Zealand are sending the finest of their young men to be trained in the Commonwealth Air Training schools. Joined with the young men of our own country they are going overseas in steadily growing numbers, and are taking part in the air war in many sections of the world. Many are patrolling our own coasts. As we see Allied air power spreading over increasingly large areas, we have ample proof of the excellent results of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Already many of these airmen have given their lives, but there are others coming to take their place, and to make sure that the cause for which they died will not be lost. Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore, who was Air Officer Commander-in-Chief in the Middle East in 1940 and 1941 has been visiting Canada, and has told of some of the difficulties faced by the R.A.F. in the early years of the war. At that time he said, it was not unusual for the enemy to outnumber us four to one, and sometimes the odds were six to one. The importance of air strength has been demonstrated many times in this war, and it is clear that strong air support is necessary for all military and naval operations. The Commonwealth Air Training Plan is providing the men for this, and we in Canada are fortunate to be able to play such an important part in its furtherance.

Just Civil War Debt

Loan To Finland Was Used To Fight The Government

The Government of Finland is reported to have made its usual offer of payment of debt instalment to the United States and that the Washington Administration has declined to accept it.

Much has been made of the so-called payment of "war debts" by the Finnish Government to the United States, and for a number of years prior to the outbreak of the present war, comparisons were made by the isolationist-pacifist, anti-British group in the United States to show what an honest race the Finns were, and that the British were "Welshers".

Finland, however, never had a war debt at all. One very good reason is that Finland did not exist as a separate government during the last war, being a province of Russia. After the Bolshevik revolution, a Finnish government was established with the help of the Russian Bolsheviks. This government was smashed by the General Maarenheim who is now fighting with Germany against the Russians. He it was who obtained money from the United States to finance his campaign to smash the people's government and against the Russians from 1919 to 1921.

So far as it might be called a "war debt" it was not a war for democracy, but a civil war against the democracy of Finland, who are today, involved in the war against the people who gave them their freedom, and who would gladly get out of it if their masters would let them. They are in much the same boat as the Spanish people will be if General Franco were to openly participate in the war on the side of Germany.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

National Food Tasters

Lord And Lady Wootton Pass Judgment On Wartime Dishes

Food Minister Lord Wootton and Lady Wootton quietly fulfil the office of national food tasters at their own home.

Lord Wootton made this known when, smiling the laughter lines in his chubby face into prominence, he disclosed he tried out British's new national loaf on his wife.

Lady Wootton, it should be said, would not for a minute claim the position of Food Taster No. 1, of course. She has never claimed to be a gastronome, has no particular fancies about food, and is not finicky about what she eats. She is a good average eater of palatable food.

That, perhaps, is why Lord Wootton, who does not enjoy such a good appetite as his wife, occasionally tries out a new turn of wartime food at his own table. Prior to the bread experiment he tried dried vegetables out on Lady Wootton.

Lady Wootton becomes inordinately curious whenever she gets into a kitchen—a good thing for a food minister's wife. Not long ago she went to a showroom where the equipment was something to be seen. But Lady Wootton became absorbed in the operations of a cook who was making a dish of stuffed liver and stale bread and later, in the same cook's ingenuity in making suet take the place of sugar in apple pudding.

Five School Chums Meet As Marines In Pacific War

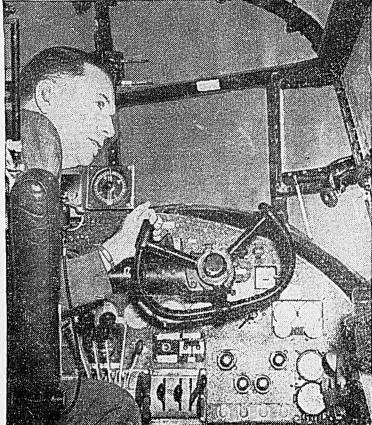

This is the saga of five buddies from Allentown, Pa., who went away as marines last December 8.

They started to elementary school together, played together and graduated from high school together in 1939.

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor the five lads became leather-necks. They trained together at Parris Island and later at Naval River N.C.

Two of them went overseas and landed on Guadalcanal in July. Then, in November, they were standing on a sandy beachhead on the island watching a troop transport unload reinforcements. Up the beach, side by side, trudged the other three.

Seven sons in uniform and on active service is the proud record of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vautour of Ste. Anne de Kent, N.B. Three of their boys, William, Leo and Donat enlisted just two days after the declaration of war. Within one year, Gerard, Wilfred and Elsie also enlisted together. The first three are now serving overseas; the other three are in duty in Canada. Eusebe, was recently accepted as a recruit after several previous attempts on his part had failed due to lack of education. The Canadian Legion War Services helped out with educational facilities and Pte. Eusebe Vautour is now taking his basic training at Fredericton, N.B. It was a happy day for this patriotic French Canadian family when he was accepted because they felt that the family had not contributed their all to the war effort until Eusebe too wore the King's uniform, along with his six brothers, two brothers-in-law and 14 cousins.

The Russian front is, in terms of fighting conditions, the most difficult and largest of the Allied fronts. It is estimated that about 15,000,000 men are engaged on it, and the fighting in Russia's winter conditions is cruelly hard.

Millions have been wounded on this front, and in the rear, where guerrilla fighters are carrying on the battle, more millions are being shattered every day and night.

Soviet doctors are working tirelessly to repair the damage wrought by Nazi guns. A Russian front-line correspondent has reported that there are times in the height of battle when Soviet surgeons work at operating tables for three days on end. In these 72 hours a surgeon will treat 200 to 250 wounded men.

The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund is appealing for $1,000,000 with which to dispatch some of the supplies that the Russian people need in such desperate measure.

This appeal is directed to all Canadians — workers in factories, physicians, surgeons and nurses in the laboratories and clinics, housewives, businessmen, everyone in Canada who appreciates the significance of the Russian front.

Develop New Plane

Large Flying Boat Is Still On The Secret List

Robert Perkins, Conservative, disclosed in the British House of Commons that Britain has a new plane in production, the York.

During a discussion of the future of British civil aviation after the war, Mr. Perkins said "if air control would release 20 Yorks and 10 Sunderlands we could look Pan-American Airways in the face."

The York is still on the secret list, but since Perkins coupled it with the Sunderlands it presumably is a large plane capable of transporting both passengers and freight.

HALFWAY HOUSE

—BY—

MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER XII.

Anne pulled on her clothes and ran from her room into the half hall people rushed past her. To the left, down stairs, gathered in the lobby, and someone opened the wide door to the fire-filled night. Hot, smoke-laced air puffed in. One look showed that a dozen flames cut across by the town road. Another look showed the fire making an encircling plow movement about Halfway House. To the west, in the forest barrier stood South Creek, a dozen small fires lit by the chain of sparks, mushroomed up. Soon it would be one gigantic inferno.

The noise of the fire was a steady roar. The blazing glow was blinding, the heat so intense that it beat edown on Halfway House, igniting the roof, and a bucket brigade was formed in an attempt to save the hotel. . . .

It wasn't until he received a report from the Ranger air-patrol that Steve Hayes realized the danger to Halfway House. He had not known that the fire was that far away. Recalling his training, he blamed himself for not having taken precautions to assure the safety of the people at the hotel. But he knew the blame was not his entirely. The cause of the fire heighlighted that it was not he who had driven the fire east. That flame proved what he already knew: The fire was incendiary, and it had been started by some sort of firebrand set in a dozen widely separated places.

He had hundreds of men working, fighting the fire over a wide front, and it was a vast effort made. But the battle had not ended until countless acres of forest had been destroyed; the battle would go on for days. All that could be done was being done. The only complication was the smoke.

He rode up to the hotel through smoke and fiery wind-carried embers, and he found the people there carrying buckets of water in a futile attempt to hold back the flames which were already after him. He sensed the panic and hysteria of the people. He saw Anne among those carrying water. He saw Rhea helping helpless on the front porch, and he saw an ugly, fantastic picture. It filled him with the rage that had smoldered in him since the horror started. He wasn't sure that he wouldn't kill the man responsible for the horror. He hoped he'd find either John Blake or Erich Kruger, or whatever he called himself—tonight.

He dismounted, holding the reins so the excited horses wouldn't bolt and stampede, and charged forward. They asked their frightened questions: "Is there any way to escape?" Rhea pushed, almost fought her way through the group. She didn't look behind her, but walked straight toward the water's edge. "Steve!" She shouted, "Steve!" She gripped him like the hands of a drowning person.

"Steve!" She screamed hysterically. "Steve, you've got to save me! You've got to get me away from here!"

A gust of wind showered them all with sparks. Rhea cried out; she bent forward, clutching her dress at the spike that fell near the shiny gown she was wearing. He could see that she more than any of the others was near the breaking point. Some feeling, perhaps pity for all her woes, made him put his arms about her.

Anne dropped the bucket she had carried from pump to hold the water. Steve met her eyes, and his presence calmed her, feeding in her. She didn't know how his presence made things better. She watched the others gather about him, huddled together, quieting down, saw Rhea go to him and she saw Steve put his arm about the girl—his wife. She looked away. The roof of Halfway House she saw, was a mass of flames. Halfway House was doomed.

Steve said, "This is no good, staying here. The hotel can't be saved." His voice was calm but authoritative. "We'll get out here, get a boat, and everyone may not know it. We're bound to be lucky against the lake. There is comparative safety by the water. We'll go there at once."

It was a silent group of men and women that walked the half-mile to the water. There was a lot of clearing by the lake. Steve had gotten his axes and shovels from the burning hotel and widen the space. They felled trees, uprooted brush, began digging a trench around the clearing. The ground was soft, but the big-grade, and moistened the undergrowth too short to remove. They worked against the blazing backdrop, under a choking ceiling of smoke. They were soled and dressed, and frightened. It was Steve and Burke who brought the dozen frightened horses from the hotel stable, hitching them in shallow water on ropes secured to stakes driven into the muddy bottom. By then dawn was breaking.

Steve Hayes flung down the shovel he worked with. "There's an abandoned canoe along the shore about a mile from here. It's a good boat, will float, but I'm going to see. Maybe one of us can cross the lake. There's a motor boat at Billings' Landing. We've got to try to get it.

Some come with me." He shook his head as Drew Lowry stepped forward. "You, sir, I don't think you're up to it."

Anne could see the trouble look in her father's eyes. He said almost shyly, "It's my job, I want to blame for this in a way. I permitted Erich Kruger to get away. He looked unhappily at Anne. "Yes, Anne," he told her. "Steve says it was an incendiary, that Erich set it to cover his escape. Therefore I'm to blame."

Anne couldn't stand to see his grieving eyes. He said almost shyly, "It's my job, I want to blame for this in a way. I permitted Erich Kruger to get away. He looked unhappily at Anne. "Yes, Anne," he told her. "Steve says it was an incendiary, that Erich set it to cover his escape. Therefore I'm to blame."

him. His name is Jud—a degenerate sort, I think."

He looked at Anne softly said, "I came to the gashed Hotel. It was in the path of the fire. I hope I came soon enough."

"Soon enough, Erich," she told him. "I'm glad you came—Glad!" Steve Hayes moved toward Jud who was actually in the boat. Then he indicated that the boat should be boarded. He put Rhea Marshall in first. He spoke no word to her, nor to Jud. There was room enough for all three to have to stay behind. Anne and Steve and Drew Lowry remained on the shore.

Erich Kruger said, "You trust me not to escape again, Jud?"

"You're my friend," he said. "Keep your eye on Jud for me, friend."

The motor roared. The boat moved away, Erich at the helm. It was crowded to the gunwales. Anne was still spouting water into the lake, toward the free side. She felt sad about Erich, but proud too.

Steve put his arm about her. "He's an all right guy," he said. "You like him, Anne. I hope you like me as much as I do. At least enough to forgive me for hounding him. And for a lot of other things."

"I love you, Steve," she whispered. And she was drawn into his arms. Just as he kissed her she had a glimpse of Halfway House. It was a wretched sight. The building was starting over. Her father's face smiled at her, showing he didn't care. . . . She closed her eyes against a lot of ugly things as Steve's arms tightened securely.

(The End)

SMILE AWHILE

"Give me an example of foreign entanglements," said the teacher. "A plate of spaghetti," replied Tommy.

"George said that if I refused him he would never propose to another girl."

"That's right. I believe you were last on his list."

"So your engagement to that banker's daughter is off. I thought you said she dated on you."

"So she did; but her father proved to be an antidote."

Daughter (sighing)—I still think the world's wonderful. Everything is so beautiful and this is so much to be thankful for.

Dad—Who is it this time?

"Waiter, there's no wishbone in this chicken."

"It didn't need one, sir. That chicken lived such a contented life that it had nothing to wish for."

"I ordered a dozen oranges, but you only sent me ten."

"Part of our service, madam. Two were bad, so we saved you the trouble of throwing them away."

Minister—Where is your husband today, Mrs. Smith? I didn't see him at church.

Mrs. Smith—It grieves me to tell you, sir, that poor Charlie has joined the Great Majority.

Minister—You mean he's dead?

Mrs. Smith—Gracious, no! He's gone to the football game.

If Goal Is Achieved

Young Pigs Must Be Saved To Meet Bacon Objective

Lowering the mortality rate in young pigs is the greatest single step toward meeting the bacon production objective of 675,000,000 pounds set in the new British agreement. In fact, this may be the only assured means of achieving the goal.

Too many young pigs are lost each year—almost invariably through ignorance rather than carelessness. Lack of iron, resulting in anaemia, worms and disease germs are common causes of serious losses in young pigs.—Winnipeg Tribune.

FASHION DRAWING STUDIED AT HOME

Charts Show Smart Technique
It's Fun to be a Fashion Artist. If you're a girl who dreams of a career in fashion design, or just wants to make money (good fashion artists in department stores and on smart magazines command a good price) this may be your field.

You can learn, at home, the professional techniques used by the professionals. Guide lines and charts will help.

When sketching a figure, first draw these guide lines: a vertical "line of balance," around which to build the figure, and two pairs of parallel lines, one on each side, to indicate shoulders and bust; one for waist and hips.

Following these guide lines, sketching the figure is easy. The side that supports the body weight is drawn in angular lines; the other side is smooth.

Guide lines and charts also simplify drawing head and body in correct proportion.

Large instruction book has these guides and charts and shows how to draw lovely figures in all sorts of poses. Explains perspective, foreshortening, techniques, the drawing of faces, shading, etc.

On the evening of Wednesday, December thirtieth, a large number of Chinook friends gathered at the School to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Barros, who will soon be leaving Chinook to take up residence on their farm at Bindloss.

The entertainment took the form of a whist drive, for which first prizes went to Miss Joyce Hogg and Mr. W. Gingle. "Booby" Prizes went to Mrs C.L. Withell and Mr. Jas. Aitken.

Following the whist, a delicious lunch was served by the ladies, and the crowd adjourned to the hall for dancing. The music was supplied by Miss Emily Zawasky and Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Butts.

During the course of the dance, Mr. L.D. Butts, on behalf of the people of Chinook and district, presented Mr. and Mrs. Barros with a set of Pyrex ware, as a parting gift and as a token of esteem from their many friends.

Brown coupons, Nos. 1 to 11, "Spare 'C'" from Ration Book Number 1 now in the hands of the public, are to be used for this purpose.

Each Brown coupon, Nos. 1 to 11, "Spare 'C'" entitles the holder to buy one week's supply. Only Brown coupons, Nos. 1 to 11 "Spare 'C'" can be used for the purchase of butter.

Each coupon becomes good on a definite date and expires on a definite date... and can be used only within its prescribed period, as given below.

The system for butter is different from that applying to Sugar, Coffee and Tea, where coupons have no specified expiry date.

Dates When Butter Coupons Become Usable—and Expire

Coupon Number	Good for Purchase beginning on	Not Good for Purchase After
1	December 21	January 3
2	December 28	January 3
3 and 4	January 4	January 17
5 and 6	January 18	January 31
7 and 8	February 1	February 14
9 and 10	February 15	February 28
11	March 1	March 14

NOTE: Brown Coupon No. 2, "Spare 'C'" will be good for use only during a 7-day period—December 28 to January 3. Brown Coupons Nos. 1, and 3 to 11, "Spare 'C'", can be used within 2-week periods.

Coupons for butter, like those for Sugar, Coffee and Tea (the red and green coupons) must be detached by, or in the presence of any seller of butter or his employee. If desired, consumers may lodge their butter coupon sheets with their retailers, so that the latter may detach the required coupons when delivering.

Temporary Ration Cards

All Brown Coupons on Temporary Ration Cards issued to members of the armed forces on leave, visitors to Canada, etc., are good after December 21.

Butter Holdings Exceeding More Than One Pound per Person Must Be Reported and Coupons Surrendered

Consumers or non-registered boarding houses having in their possession the equivalent of more than one pound of butter for each person in the household, must before January 3, 1943, report their holdings to the nearest office of this Board. They must forward with their reports the number of butter coupons representing their butter holdings. If the quantity of butter in possession of such persons represents more than the eleven brown coupons in Ration Book No. 1, which will be good for butter, they must in their reports undertake to detach from future ration books, additional butter coupons equal to the remainder of the surplus.

Special Notice to Retailers

On and after December 28, retailers must establish their right to purchase new supplies of butter from their suppliers by turning over to the supplier currently valid ration coupons equivalent to the poundage of butter ordered from the suppliers.
